DUKE TO DON OVERALLS AS CAR SHOP LABORER.

Manchester Coming From Britain to Learn Railroad in Papa Zimmerman's Grimy Plant.

Detroit, Mich., June 6.—The Duke of Manchester is coming to Detroit to work in the railroad shops controlled by his father-in-law, Eugene Zimmerman, of Cincinnati. It is not because the Duke needs the ready money that he will resort to this manual labor, but because he is anxious to get knowledge of the railroad business from the construction of engines and coaches up.

Maybe the Duke contemplates stepping into his father-in-law's shoes when that gentleman gets too old for business.

The announcement that he will become one of the laborers in the railroad shops was made by Mr. Zimmerman, who said the Duke was anxious to learn the railroad business in America, so that he would be better qualified to discuss that particular business in the House of Lords.

DYNAMITE BLOWS

THREE TO ATOMS

Ten Others Injured by Explosion; Cars Jumping Rails Is the Cause.

Chicago, June 6.—By the explosion of dynamite at Reddick, Ill., late Tuesday three men were blown to atoms and ten injured. So great was the force of the explosion that every window in the town was broken and the detonation was heard at Kankakee, 20 miles away, and at Mokena, 32 miles away. A fire that had started in some oil cars previous to the explosion consumed 10 cars, causing a loss of several thousand dollars.

One of the men killed was hurt more than 300 feet. The identity of the other two victims might never have been learned had it not been for a man who was with them, as only a few pieces of their bodies were found.

The train was running on the tracks of the Chicago, Indiana & Southern railway when an oil car became derailed, carrying with it two other cars, in one of which was the dynamite. A hot-box set fire to the first car derailed, and the flames spread to the other cars.

ORCHARD TELLS STORY OF CRIME

Rehearses Plots and Outrages of 1899 at Haywood Trial

IS STRONGLY GUARDED

Even While He Was Testifying Detectives Stood Close to Protect Him From Harm—He Told of Outrages in Coeur d'Alene.

Boise, Idaho, June 6.—Harry Orchard, the miner who confessed to throwing the bomb that killed former Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, and the state's chief witness in the trial of William D. Haywood of the Western Miners' Federation for complicity in the murder, took the stand at 9:40 o'clock yesterday morning. His examination had not gone leader of the miners, at the Hercules mine.

Orchard went to Thompson Falls and then to Missoula, where he remained one day, going to the Little Rock Valley, where he stopped a day with Pat McCarty.

He went to the Coeur d'Alene to get his wages, and then went to Butte.

Ed Boyce, then president of the Western Federation of Miners, lived in Butte and Orchard gave him a withdrawal card. Then he went to Salt Lake City and Bingham, Utah, to work in a mine. All this was in 1899.

Gives Evidence to Defense.

In this remarkable statement to the jury delivered Monday by J. H. Hawley for the state, a number of overt acts were charged against the "inner circle" of the Western Federation of Miners.

Mr. Hawley, however, stated that he was holding other cases in reserve. These he agreed to submit in writing to counsel for the defense, but he said that it would be preferable for the development of his case if, for the present, the announcements were withheld from the public.

The defense was furnished with a typewritten list.

It is understood that the list of murders and other crimes charged against the federation numbers at least 20, but the specific cases mentioned by counsel for the state in his opening address far when he declared that it was he who had lighted one of the fuses that blew up the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mines when they were wrecked by two tons of dynamite.

Chief witness of the state of Idaho against William D. Haywood, Charles J. Meyer and George A. Pettibone. Orchard alleges that he blew up ex-Governor Steunenberg and killed many other men by their orders.

Orchard said that he was a member of the Burke Miners' union and of the Western Federation of Miners in 1899. Chief Counsel Hawley conducted the direct examination.

The defense fought hard against Orchard's testimony of the outrage at Coeur d'Alene on April 29, 1899. The court overruled the objection, however.

holding that the prosecution might show generally what was done in Coeur d'Alene but not go into the details.

Orchard was heavily guarded while he testified. Detectives stood close to him while he gave his evidence.

In the course of his examination Orchard gave his true name as Albert E. Hawley. He has been known as Harry Orchard for eleven years.

When Orchard told how Haywood paid him $400 for the blowing up of the Vindicator mine and agreed with him for other murders Haywood swallowed hard on a lump in his throat, but otherwise showed little emotion.

At the afternoon session of the court he swore that Haywood and Pettibone asked him to assassinate Governor Panhandle. He tried, he said, but unsuccessfully.

After telling of attacks on mines with powder, Orchard said that about 1,000 men boarded a train for Warner.

W. F. Davis took command and lined up the men who had rifles. Men were sent out on a skirmishing line to fire on the Bunker Hill mine and draw the fire of the guards.

"Reports were made that no men were in the mine and the signal was given to bring up the powder," said Orchard.

"The powder was placed in three different places."

"Who lit the fuses?" asked Hawley.

"I lit one of them," Orchard replied.

"What occurred?"

"The mill was blown to pieces."

"Were any men killed?"

"Two men were killed. One man named Smith that I knew was killed."

Then the United States troops came; he narrated, and he left the Coeur d'Alene when the soldiers were coming.

The witness related that Cochran said in the union meeting that no trouble was to be feared from Governor Steunenberg as he was a friend of the union, and when the troops came it was understood that Dr. Collins was to give a signal if it was safe for the miners to come into town. Orchard went to Montana with Pat Dempsey, leaving W. F. Davis, the leader of the miners, at the Hercules mine.

Orchard went to Thompson Falls and then to Missoula, where he remained one day, going to the Little Rock Valley, where he stopped a day with Pat McCarty.

CUBS HUG GIANTS HARD

ARE NOW 80 POINTS AHEAD

Brooklyn Took a Good One From Cincinnati and Phillies Had an Easy Time With St. Louis—Only One American Game.

The New York Giants, scooting down the toboggan slide, were given an accelerating shove yesterday by the leaders, the Chicago Cubs, in a game played in the latter's ballpark.

The bear hug was to the accompaniment of 8 to 2, the home team awaiting the ball for keeps, while the visitors were practically powerless with the willow.

The McGraw men are now 80 points ahead of the Phillies, who are coming fast, defeating St. Louis 2 to 1 yesterday.

Brooklyn and Cincinnati played a fast game, the former winning, 1 to 0. Weather was not propitious for the meeting of the Bear-eaters and Pittsburgh.

And the same weather prevented all but one game in the American league.

Down in Washington they dodged the rain-drops long enough to let St. Louis pull in a stringing defeat to Washington; the score 10 to 1, although a more appropriate tally for that governmental center would have been 10 to 1, with Bryan on the first base bleachers howling like mad.

GODDARD TUMBLED

BEFORE ITALIANS

Latter Had Revenge for Defeat Earlier in the Season Yesterday Afternoon, Taking the Game, 10 to 2.

The Goddard base ball team was up against a tough proposition yesterday afternoon, when it played a return game against the Italian Athletic club's team on the Rangers' field.

Although the game only lasted five innings, the Italians had them trimmed to the tune of 10 to 2.

With apparently more to come if the game had continued. Most of the game was played in a drizzling rain and the grounds were in bad shape for fast playing.

"Nip Goddard" was in the box for the Italians, while Olsen did the twirling for Goddard until late last of the fourth, when he went to pieces and was replaced by Shina.

The Italians owed their victory to superior stick work, as they

Tom Stankard, once the Intercity's star second baseman, now playing his second season with the Springfield, Mass., team in the Connecticut league, is one of the league's fourteen batters in the .300 class.

Capt. Harry Bosch of the Amherst college nine and who played for Burlington in the Northern league last summer, has signed to play with New Haven in the Connecticut league.

Barry, Holy Cross' heavy-hitting shortstop, and McCabe, a Niagara university pitcher, go to the same team with him.

Beach is a Burlington boy.

"Rube" Vickers, playing with Williamsport, Pa., broke into the Tri-State league, after being "canned" by the Philadelphia Athletics, with a 2 to 1 victory.

He was opposed by "Jim" Wiggs, who played with him on the Burlington team last summer.

Wiggs got the better of the pitchers' battle, but still the "Rube" won out, having better support.

Managers of several clubs of the New England and Eastern leagues have their eyes on Catcher Ball and Thirdbaseman Harris of the Barre-Montpelier team of the New Hampshire state league, who are considered two of the fastest players that have ever been seen on diamonds outside of the big leagues.

Ball and Harris are playing with Barre-Montpelier against West Manchester this afternoon, and it is said are being sized up by one or two major league managers.

All base ball fans who have seen these players during the present season agree that they know every department of the game and that they are fast enough for teams in the big leagues.

They are excellent batters, brilliant fielders, have good judgment and play the game from start to finish.

One Manchester base ball fan who has seen the rise of many players during the past quarter of a century says that Ball and Harris are as promising and good as he ever laid eyes on, and he wonders why the big league teams do not secure their services.

—Manchester, N. H., Mirror.

George M. Aldrich in whose ears the siren song of base ball management is humming in connection with this city, was in town Tuesday night on his return from Manchester where he had spent the afternoon in consultation with Managers MacDonald of Manchester and Daley of Montpelier-Barre.

Their plan is to transfer the East Manchester team to this city and continue the league with a six club circuit, Manchester, Concord, Franklin, Laconia, Montpelier-Barre and Burlington.

If certain of their plans develop favorably Mr. Aldrich will come to Concord again the last of the week to decide the matter finally one way or the other.
